NAMDC RECOGNIZES “CONTRACTOR OF THE QUARTER”

John Sinopoli, assigned to communications directorate, is responsible for supporting the identification, coordination and documentation of the Navy’s input with the new encrypted high capacity shipboard data networks. These networks support the integrated air and missile defense mission.

During the awards ceremony, he was recognized for masterfully translating this complex issue to the operations community and identifying shortfalls with the data networks and their fielding.

“John is an invaluable asset, with a tremendous perception and knowledge,” said Capt. Frank Olmo, chief of staff. “He is an important contributor that is making a difference in the fleet.”

Sinopoli began his career in 1997 when he enlisted in the Navy as a seaman. After graduating from radioman A school, he was assigned to the USS Dwight D. Eisenhower (CVN 69). During his four year enlistment, Sinopoli achieved the rank of petty officer second class and was awarded multiple Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medals for network support.

Sinopoli is employed by Tactical Engineering and Analysis. He resides in King George with his wife Kristy.

NAMDC is the Navy’s primary authority and lead organization for Naval Joint and Coalition Integrated Air and Missile Defense matters.
