NAMDC One Year Celebration

Navy Air and Missile Defense Command (NAMDC) celebrated its one year anniversary today at Naval Support Facility Dahlgren, Va.

“NAMDC has quickly established an excellent reputation within the Ballistic Missile Defense (BMD) community,” noted Commander NAMDC, RADM Stewart O’Bryan. “I look forward to building upon the incredibly successful first year that this command has experienced.”

In the past 12 months NAMDC has grown from six to forty nine people. NAMDC personnel have supported the Numbered Fleets and multiple exercises on three continents, in eight countries, 26 cities, and onboard seven ships. In addition to building out all spaces for our full compliment of personnel, NAMDC also stood up a functional Mission Support Room with both Operational and Tactical capabilities. This capability will be used to provide both exercise and real world subject matter expertise and support to the fleet.

“We had a clear vision and tremendous assistance in getting NAMDC established,” said RADM O’Bryan. “That vision belongs to ADM Willard, Commander Pacific Command, VADM Hunt, Commander Third Fleet, VADM Locklear, Director, Navy Staff. RADM (RET) Hicks, Aegis BMD, and RDML Horn, Former NAMDC Commander and currently Commander Aegis BMD were all instrumental in the success that NAMDC experienced and enjoys today.”

In the coming years NAMDC will play a key role in supporting the Navy’s effort to execute the President’s Phased Adaptive Approach for Ballistic Missile Defense.
